The monograph is one of the first of its kind in the Slovak Republic. The intention of the authors was to interpret the selected issues important for understanding language training in the system of the police education with emphasis on the use of e-learning in improving the service activities of police officers. The authors point out, pro-futuro, that the Border and Foreign Police Service will have an irreplaceable status in the implementation of measures adopted by the European Union institutions in the field of international irregular migration. The uniqueness of the output is strengthened by the analysis and interpretation of the empirical research results to verify the effectiveness of the e-learning method in the international police environment. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a scientific monograph that has a significant international impact on the development of language police education in a global context, therefore, the authors allowed themselves to classify the output in the A+ category.

The originality of this output lies in the interpretation of language training harmonization in terms of the need to standardize the terminology base for border and foreign police for EU member states in order to strengthen the police language skills during joint operations at the EU's external borders which are coordinated by the European Border and Coast Agency. The uniqueness of this output lies in the fact that the authors designed an effective and comprehensive model of professional language training and prepared proposals and recommendations for the process of harmonization of common language standards at the European level. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a scientific monograph that has a significant international impact on the development of language police education in a global context, therefore, the authors allowed themselves to classify the output in the A+ category.

Given that vocational language education is a long-term process, one of the primary tasks of the Academy of the Police Force is the language training for police officers in both academic and lifelong learning, which aims to meet the urgent requirements of police practice. Knowledge of professional terminology or ability to communicate professionally in a foreign language belong among the priorities of international activities covered by the Ministry of the Interior of the Slovak Republic. The university textbook is addressed primarily to students of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava, but it can also be a significant benefit for students of security study programmes at police educational institutions abroad. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a university textbook published abroad that has a significant international impact on the development of language police education in a global context, therefore, the authors allowed themselves to classify the output in the A+ category. The study, which is a part of the national research project, analyses the legislative framework of the police performance with a particular focus on foreigners who are frequent violators at public sports and cultural events. The main problem is the knowledge and use of the common language by police officers and foreign violators as many times violent acts are, at the first contact, dealt with the proper spoken orders (communication) by members of the police. The study represents a partial output from the research project supported by Slovak Research and Development Agency and it brings in the elements of originality while addressing human rights during the performance of service activities against foreigners during sports events organized in the territory of the Slovak Republic. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a study published in the international journal. It has a significant international impact on the interpretation and use of foreign language during the performance of service actions in a broader global context, therefore, the author allowed herself to classify the output in the A category.

In: Internal Security [print, electronic document] : semi-annual journal. - ISSN 2080-5268. - Volume. 12, No. 2 (2020), pp. 115-128. [NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta (100%)] The study is devoted to a discussion on selected issues relating to the EU and national legislation, which determine the process of the mainstream communication with third-country nationals in the Police Detention Centers. The study is a part of the ongoing research project of the Department of Foreign Languages of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava and the Bureau of the Border and Foreign Police of the Presidium of the Police Force, which attempts to point out the main reasons which lead to certain difficulties in performing understandable communication in the Police Detention Centres. For instance loopholes in the EU legislation, non-conformity of the EU and national legislation in using the state (national) vs foreign language in official service communication with third-country nationals whose stay is unauthorized in the territory of the Slovak Republic (EU and the Schengen Area), and their residence or entry into the Schengen Area is detected as irregular and subsequently clarified, with respective accountability. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a study published in the international journal that has a significant international impact on interpretation of intercultural communication in a global context, therefore, the author allowed herself to classify the output in the A category.
5.	ADE 3 NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta Analysis of ESP in the context of rapid border teams / author Iveta Nováková. In: Internal Security [print] : semi-annual journal. - ISSN 2080-5268. - Volume. 10, No. 1 (2018), pp. 243-259. [NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta (100%)] The study provides knowledge relating to the migration crisis and the establishment of rapid border teams in the Member States of the European Union. The author identifies the primary terminological aspects in relation to the English language for specific purposes for the needs of the newly created foreign unit of the Police Force. The author interprets the regulation of the Ministry of Interior of the Slovak Republic no. 37/2017 and the new EU Regulation 2016/1624 on the European Border and Coast Guard Agency. The transnational dimension of this output lies in the analysis of international scientific research carried out at selected police training institutions in order to identify standardized syllabi for language training for members of Frontex rapid intervention teams. According to the criteria of the Scientific Board of the Academy of the Police Force in Bratislava stipulating the classification of outputs, the work is a study published in the international journal. It has a significant international impact on interpretation of vocational language training in a global context, therefore, the author allowed herself to classify the output in the A category.

	The research is focused on a thorough review of the performance of service actions by members of the Police Force with the use of coercive means, rights and obligations with an emphasis on respecting the legal principle of appropriateness of the performance of service actions. Adherence to the principle of proportionality is analysed from three points of view - constitutional, administrative and criminal. In the research, attention is paid to defining the limit and degree of legitimacy of the intervention by a member of the Police Force into the fundamental rights and freedoms of the person against whom the intervention is carried out. The most significant outputs: ADE 1 NOVÁKOVÁ, Iveta Principles of police activities involving foreign violators / author Iveta Nováková.
